

Studio Study

Alissa Johnson Interiors' Chicago HQ is located in a new build—which the designer says was a versatile canvas for integrating distinctive and warm furnishings. “The opportunity to design our space from scratch allowed us to create an environment that embodies our brand identity and fosters creativity and collaboration among our team,” Alissa says. She brought in unique textures and shapes, including artwork by Jonathan Pliego. “We wanted something with movement, almost like waves, and to feel calming yet still contrast with the white walls.”
